UNIT 2 Greetings & Introductions

1. N+는

'N+는' follows a noun, indicating that it is the topic under discussion. The topic is often, but not necessarily, the same as the subject.

학생 → 학생이에요.

제가 예요/예요.

I am Anne.

교수님 예요/예요.

When using the '-이세요/예요' pattern, just raising the intonation at the end without any change in word order makes the sentence a question.

한국 사람이에요. ↗ I am Korean.

한국 사람인예요? ↗ Are you Korean?

3. 네, 아니요

For questions using the '-이세요/예요?' patterns, you answer using '네' or '아니요'.

읽으세요 ↗ 읽으세요.

* 주세요

Introduction to Hangeul

Korean uses its own unique alphabet called Hangeul. It is considered to be one of the most efficient alphabets in the world and has garnered unanimous praise from language experts for its scientific design and excellence.

Hangeul was created under King Sejong during the Joseon Dynasty (1393 -1910). In 1446, the first Korean alphabet was proclaimed under the original name Hun-min-jeong-eum, which literally meant ‘the correct sounds for the instruction of the people.’

Hangeul consists of 14 consonants and 10 vowels, totaling 24 basic characters. The shapes of Hangeul’s consonants were formed after voice organs (such as lip, tongue, throat, etc.) while those of the vowels were formed after what one might say symbolizes heaven, earth, and human beings.

All words in Korean are composed of syllables, which go by the following basic rules:

1. A syllable begins with a consonant.
2. A syllable has at least one consonant and one vowel.
3. Each syllable gets written in a square box.

A syllable that consists of a consonant and a ‘vertical vowel’ is written with the consonant on the left and the vowel on the right.

$$\sqcup [n] + \pitchfork [a] = \sqcup\pitchfork [na]$$

A syllable that consists of a consonant and a ‘horizontal vowel’ is written with the consonant on top and the vowel underneath.

$$\sqcup [n] + \sqcap [o] = \sqcup\sqcap [no]$$

If a syllable shows a consonant-vowel-consonant combination, in other words, if a syllable ends with a consonant, called batchim (meaning ‘supporting floor’ in Korean), the final consonant goes to the bottom – or floor – of that syllable.

$$\square [m] + \pitchfork [a] + \sqcup [n] = \square\pitchfork\sqcup [man]$$
$$\square [m] + \sqcap [o] + \sqcup [k] = \square\sqcap\sqcup [mok]$$

All symbols of Hangeul are written from top to bottom and from left to right. Strokes are never interrupted, not even when they change directions halfway.

Hangeul (1)

Those vowels having longer vertical strokes will always carry consonants on the left of it while horizontal vowels carry them on top.

No Korean vowels can stand alone at the beginning of a Korean syllable without a preceding consonant, but if it has no consonant sound value of its own, it must be preceded by the consonant ‘o’, which is silent when positioned at the beginning of a syllable.

The tensed consonants are ‘doubled’ versions of the normal consonants, and the aspirated consonants have one extra horizontal line in each of them.

For pronunciation, the tensed version is pronounced without any release of air, but with ‘tightness’ in the throat, and the aspirated forms are pronounced with an extra-heavy explosive puff of air through the mouth.

Hangeul (5)

A Hangeul syllable is made of a consonant and a vowel, and also can be made by adding one more consonant below the vowel. The added consonant is called ‘batchim.’ How to write a letter with a ‘batchim’ and without a ‘batchim’ are shown below.

Korean consonants are pronounced in 7 representative sounds when they are located at the end of a syllable as a ‘batchim.’ For example, in syllables such as ‘박’, ‘黠’, ‘黠’ which have ‘ㄱ’, ‘ㅋ’, ‘ㅍ’ as their ‘batchims,’ respectively all the ‘batchims’ will be pronounced as the representative sound ‘ㄱ’ and, therefore, the three syllables will be pronounced as the same sound [박]. And ‘ㅇ’, which has no sound value as the initial sound, is pronounced as [ŋ] as a ‘batchim.’ The respective batchims are pronounced as shown in the following table:

Batchim	Sound Value
ㄱ ㅋ ㅍ	[ㄱ]
ㄴ	[ㄴ]
ㄷ ㅅ ㅈ ㅊ ㅌ ㅎ ㅆ	[ㄷ]
ㄹ	[ㄹ]
ㅁ	[ㅁ]
ㅂ ㅍ	[ㅂ]

[ㄹ]	팔 arm

Pronunciation Tips <2>

몫 [목]	흙 [흑]
값 [갑]	읽다 [익따]
앉다 [안따]	젊다 [점따]
여덟 [여덜]

2. The final consonant of a syllable is pronounced as the initial sound of the following syllable when the latter begins with the consonant 'o'.
